

CANCER TREATMENT INVOLVES
MORE THAN YOU THINK.

There are approximately 10,000 children living with cancer in Canada. Some of these children develop learning difficulties as a result of treatment. Speech-language pathologists work with rehabilitation teams to help patients maintain or improve their ability to learn, communicate, and lead productive lives.

If you or a loved one is undergoing cancer treatment, visit bcaslpa.ca to find out more about how speech-language pathology and audiology services can aid your recovery.
